The article proves that excursion technique is one of the effective forms of conducting the psychology classes. The authors point out that the developed excursion program is based on biographic method as one of the scientific and historical research methods. The study points out the fact that provincial psychology has been developing as a full-fledged part of the Russian psychological science; typical picture of the Russian Empire scientific psychology development is presented in the article. The suggested approach expands the students' knowledge on history of psychology, systematizes the ideas of the Russian psychology development.

Keywords: biographic method, methodic technique, educational excursion, provincial psychology, value behavior regulator.
